2025 Performance @ GE Vernova Annual Review

1. What is the purpose of an Annual Review?

Performance @ GE Vernova provides the structure and process for us to align our personal performance and continuously improve to drive our strategic imperative of highest performing team. Specifically, the Annual Review is an opportunity for employees to reflect on, and for People Leaders to assess, contribution toward Priorities and ability to demonstrate the GE Vernova Way. It is an important data point used by People Leaders to help with their holistic evaluation and calibration of employee performance. It also supports our pay for performance philosophy where rewards are aligned to performance impact and demonstration of the GE Vernova Way.

2. Why isn't there an employee self rating in the Annual Review?

Employees have the opportunity to complete their self evaluation in Workday, which includes commentary on both priorities and GE Vernova Way principles. The self rating was removed as part of the launch of Performance @ GE Vernova, ensuring our performance management approach was reflective of our high performing culture and initiatives, and that includes being crisp on the scope of performance, updating nomenclature, and leaning out the process. However, there is nothing that prohibits an employee from leveraging words like "inconsistent" "successful" or "exceptional" in their comments.

3. If the employee portion of the Annual Review is due October 31, how should I account for performance in Q4?

Similar to how we have handled past years (e.g. 2024 was due early Oct; 2023 was due late Nov/early Dec depending on business), you should include comments on planned year end actions and expected results in their writeups. Should performance in November and/or December necessitate an adjustment to your writeup, People Leaders will have the ability to send the Annual Review back to you. Keep in mind that People Leaders cannot submit the Annual Review until January 2026, so it will remain open and with the People Leader through year-end. The Performance @ GE Vernova timeline is intended to keep the deliverables timely, especially keeping the Annual Review conversation closer to year-end, and minimizing overlap with compensation planning in January.

4. Is the rating scale of Inconsistent, Successful, and Exceptional different from the rating scale used in 2024?

The names of the rating scale labels are the only thing changing, to better align with the definitions of each rating, as well as reflective of our high performing culture and initiatives. Familiarize yourself with the ratings guidance your People Leader will use to determine your two ratings

5. How do I access my self-evaluation in Workday?

To access your self-evaluation for the first time, or access your draft self-evaluation that you saved for later, log into Workday and look for the Self Evaluation: 2025 Annual Review task in your Workday My Tasks/Awaiting Your Action. Click Get Started to access the first section.

6. I need to update my priorities, but when I go to the Priorities page of my profile it shows them as locked, what can I do?

Once your Annual Review is in progress, you cannot make edits to your Priorities from the Performance section of your Profile. Instead, you can make updates (including priority title, description, due date, and/or milestones) directly in Priorities section of the self evaluation of the Annual Review. Upon completion of this Annual Review, updates made to existing priorities will be automatically reflected in your active priorities, visible in the Performance section of your Profile. Please note if you do remove or edit a priority, ensure your People Leader is aware when you're having the Annual Review conversation.

7. When should I submit my self-evaluation?

Submit your self-evaluation in Workday no later than October 31. Set aside dedicated time on your calendar to complete your self-evaluation during the month of October. Any unsubmitted self evaluations will be auto-advanced to the People Leader on November 3.

8. What happens if I do not submit my 2025 Annual Review by the October 31 due date?

To support process adherence, it will be automatically advanced to the manager evaluation step on November 3 to ensure your People Leader has adequate time to complete their manager evaluation by the November 30 deadline. Note your People Leader has the ability to send it back to you if you need to make additional updates or edits.

9. I submitted my self-evaluation (or it was auto advanced for me), is there a way to have it back to make additional updates or edits?

If you need your self-evaluation returned to make edits, please reach out to your People Leader and ask that they send it back to you. If your People Leader already submitted, then your HR Partner will need to send it back to your People Leader first.

10. If I need help on how I'm supposed to do this in Workday, where can I go for examples?

There are step by step instructions for the employee self-evaluation in the Employee Guide accessible on the Watt.

11. When should the Annual Review conversation occur?

People Leaders should schedule the Annual Review conversation to occur in the month of January, no later than January 31.

12. Can I use AI tools to help with my 2025 Annual Review self evaluation?

Employees and People Leaders may use Amp, GE Vernova's internal GenAI application. The use of external AI tools is strictly prohibited, as feeding potentially sensitive company and employee specific information to an externally available GenAI tool for the purposes of crafting performance language creates the risk of reidentification or the inadvertent release of sensitive GEV information as the prompts are not secure or private. Note that employee-specific information such as a name, SSO or other individually identifying data (an example is a job title or description where there are less than three in an organization) should not be used with Amp. Be sure to review the prompts provided in the Employee Guide on page 5.

13. I'd like to incorporate feedback from stakeholders and colleagues into my Annual review self evaluation, is there a way to solicit that feedback in Workday?

Yes, leverage "Get Feedback on Self" in Workday. Search for "Get Feedback on Self" in the search bar and you can select one or multiple coworkers to request feedback from. You can use the defaulted questions or edit them to your specific request. Please note feedback is only visible between the receiver and the giver.

14. I missed the training, is there a recording somewhere?

Yes, the recorded training is available on the Performance @ GE Vernova page of the Watt, in the following languages: English, French, German, Portuguese, and Spanish.

15. Do new hires need to complete an Annual Review?

All employees hired prior to August 1, 2025 are expected to complete an Annual Review.

16. What happens if I switched jobs or People Leaders in the middle of the year?

If you've had a role change, all roles performed in the company during the performance year should be taken into consideration during evaluation. Your current People Leader will work with the prior People Leader to gather performance input and use best judgement giving more weight to the role in which more time was spent.

If you've had a People Leader change, your current People Leader will work with the prior People Leader, their People Leader, and HR if applicable to gather performance input. Your self-evaluation will route to the people leader in Workday at the time you submit the form.

17. What if I was on leave during the year?

If you were on leave at any point in the year, the evaluation should focus on the time worked during the year.

18. What if I am on leave during the Annual Review process? Can I complete the process when I return in 2026?

If you are on leave during the 2025 Annual Review process and unable to complete the self and manager evaluations before January 31, you will be able to initiate the process through Q1 2026.

19. I don't see the 2025 Annual Review self evaluation task in my Workday inbox, why is this?

Only Salaried, active employees (PB and above) hired on or before July 31, 2025 are required to complete the Annual Review. If you are an Other Salaried or Hourly employee, or a new hire who'd like to participate, you can manually initiate the task. Log into Workday and in the search bar, type Start My Performance. Select Start My Performance from the search results. From the Start My Performance screen, select Annual Review for Review Template, (the period start and end date will automatically populate). Click Submit and then Get Started on the following screen.
